CHANGING OUR NAME.

My dear Chums,—This is the last time that I shall address you as readers of the BOYS' HERALD, but I hope it will be by no means my final chat with you. You will have noticed that in several pages of this paper I have announced that the HERALD will next week join hands with that popular sport and adventure paper, THE MARVEL. And, as the editor of that paper, I hope that my readers will support me as they have done in past times.

When you buy the MARVEL next week, you will find that it has much in similarity with this issue before you. There will appear in that number another magnificent, long complete story of your old favourites of H.M.S. Thundercloud. The story is entitled, "Old Hefty's Honour," and is in my opinion, as humorous and exciting as any you have read of this grand series.

Then there will be another great feature that cannot fail to appeal irresistibly to you. As you see, Walter Edwards is writing the final instalment of "The College of Sportsmen" in this last number of the HERALD. But next week you will find him in the MARVEL; there he will introduce to you the most fascinating character ever found in fiction. His name is Kit Strong.

Kit starts his career as a newsboy, yet is marked out by reason of his personality for something bigger in the social scale. He becomes a boxer of some note, and then his determination to gain education sees him fighting his way to Halliwell, the great sporting college. There he meets with amazing adventures that will claim your attention in the MARVEL next week.

The title of the story is, "Kit Strong Hits Out."

Another great feature in this fine collection of fiction is "Champion of the Navy," a story of sport and adventure in the Senior Service. The author is one who is world famous for his Navy yarns. Indisputably, there is none who knows the subject better than John S. Margerison, he has written scores of stories, but this is really the greatest of them all.

I have no room to detail all the attractions you will meet with next Tuesday in the MARVEL. I have mentioned a fair sample of them here, and I assure you the rest will meet with your highest expectations. In fact, I can promise you that the combination of the HERALD and the MARVEL is going to be a great success. Unity is strength, remember.

In closing down, I will say "Au revoir!" I hope next Tuesday to have another chat with you all, not in the HERALD, but through the medium of the MARVEL.

Till next Tuesday, then!
